We have always believed giving was important, but when our giving grew to a significant level, we wanted to be much more intentional. We turned to Calvin Edwards & Company for help. Their analysis, guidance, wisdom, and gentle prodding have enabled us to become much more organized and strategic about the money we contribute to ministries. In one case, we had been involved with a ministry for three years and hadn't figured it out properly, but it took Calvin just a couple months to get a handle on it. His counsel was invaluable to us and to the ministry.

We seek to contribute counsel and advice to the nonprofits we support- not just dollars. Calvin Edwards has been excellent in this regard too; in fact, often the advice we give came from him. He also understands our hectic schedules and is very flexible.

We have come to depend heavily on the perceptive insights of Calvin Edwards & Company and look forward to continuing the partnership.
